Only 1% of students receiving special education services in the United States have a primary eligibility of Deaf or Hard of Hearing (DHH). As such, professionals who work with these students need to be highly specialized, and their work is getting even more specialized with recent technological advances in hearing devices. School districts need the assistance of an Educational Audiologist to help them face the unique educational and technological challenges associated with these students! EARS LLC can help!

EARS LLC's services include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Consultation regarding Hearing Assistive Technology (HAT)/DM/FM systems for the purpose of recommending and fitting of new equipment
- Consultation regarding hearing-related IEP goals and accommodations
- Related Service provision under Audiology including aural rehabilitation and/or services related to hearing loss or self-advocacy
- Complete equipment oversight including detailed inventory and ongoing maintenance
- Equipment troubleshooting of HAT equipment or personal hearing device equipment, including earmold tubing replacements and minor repairs
- Teacher in-services and trainings
- Earmold impressions and ordering/fitting of new earmolds
- Audiological evaluations:
 - Full diagnostic hearing evaluations for students in a sound booth
 - In-depth hearing screenings on-site at your location, including tympanometry and oto-acoustic emissions screenings
- Functional Listening Evaluations (FLEs) to assist in determining potential benefit of Hearing Assistive Technology (HAT)/FM systems
- Oversight and/or administration of state-mandated hearing screenings
-and more, depending on the needs of your students and staff!
